Keene has purchased an extensive stable of hunters, and expects to repeat his triumples of former years, when he was in at the death oftener than any of the huntsmen who joined in the sport. In 1895 Mr. Keene made the record jump at Melton Mowbray. Not knowing the ground, he took his horse, known as Twenty-four, over a fence to take a short cut to where the hounds were casting for a fox. He saw a fence in front of him and set his horse at it just as the hounds gave tongue. The other huntsman shouted to him in slarm, but he did not know that their cries boded danger to him. He went at the fence at full speed. Twenty-four took off and landed him safely on the other side. He had jumped a fence with furze concealing it five fact the following important Change in Schedule, The fellowing important changes will

THE SOUTHERN IRON INDUSTRY

No Workable Furnace Unable to Make Pig Iron at a Profit.

DORMANT FURNACES IN BLAST.

The Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Co. Resuscitating Those in Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee,

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16-Special.-In be ginning with this week's issue of the Manufacturers' Record a series of arnicles on the developments during the past year in Southern iron industry, Mr. Edward H. Sanborn, of Philadelphia, noting that there are blast furnaces in the South that have continued successfully in operation throughout the severest turned profits to their owners without interruption, sketches the restoration of Interruption, sketches the restoration of the Virginia blast furnaces to the ranks of active pig iron producers, and says: "This has been made pessible and even easy of accomplishment by the extraor-diary advance in the price of pig iron and the comparatively insignificant in-crease in the cost of production and the insatisable demand for every ton of iron that can be made. There is probably no furnace in the United States in work-able condition that could not make and no furnace in the United States in workable condition that could not make and sell pig iron at a profit under the conditions which now prevail. The revival of the Virginia furnaces, however, should not be viewed in that light, for what has been done has been undertuken with foresight and system and he part of a very comprehensive plan to carry out in a practical business way the purposes which were overthrown by speculation early in the mineties.

In its resuscitation and consolidation of dormant furnace plants, its important operations in ore, coal and coke, and its relirond enterprises, form the most conspicuous and most interesting feature of the Virginia iron industry at present, and the probable result of it all is the subject of no little conjecture and prophecy among those who have some knowledge of the conditions which must be met.

This Virginia enterprise is typical of the general movement which has developed through the fron regions of the South from the Tennessee and Alabama centre. Even in Alabama the story of fron has, according to the views of experts, only begun to be told. The furnaces in the Birmingham abstrict have practically sold their output for the rest of this year and the first hal for the rest of this year and the first hair of 1900, and it is estimated that undertakings, now on foot will possibly double the capacity of the furnaces in that field within the next five years.

Under the present money order system no order can be secured for an amount less than $2.50, and this at money order alone. This proposed change would allow all offices to issue money orders. The adoption of a "special collection stamp" was also recommended.

The consolidation of third and fourth class matter at the third class rate was advocated, thereby allowing merchandise to pass through the mails at the rate of half-cent an article.

A better classification of second class mail matter was also recommended, and the discarding from this class all matter except bona fide newspapers and legitimate publications in the shape of periodicals.
